

This web site relates to PetroKALI which is/are produced by PJSC “Uralkali” being the one of the world’s leading potash producers (the “Product(s)”). PetroKALI is a high quality potassium used as a component of technical fluids in drilling sector which maintains borehole stability, inhibits clay swelling and fines migration, improves cement/formation bond and can be used as a weight agent. This website is intended to inform as wide an audience as possible about the purpose of the Product(s), its areas of application, characteristics, benefits as well as methods of application and indicative doses for the use of the Product(s). You can find and get to know this information on this web site by downloading the respective leaflets, scientific research articles on the use of the Product(s) and registration certificates (in pdf format).

This web site is not a trading platform and provides illustrative information on application of the Product(s). Therefore, before using the Product(s) please consult a specialist including on exact doses of its application in each particular case.

This website serves the purpose of marketing of the Product(s). You can find out more about the delivery of the Product(s) by filling out the Product Query Form by indicating the required packaging, the quantity of the Product(s), the contact details of the applicant as well as the place of delivery.

Special websites are not independent operators of personal data processing from Product Query Form.

Please note that the information provided by you in the Product Query Form is sent directly to Uralkali Trading (<https://www.uralkali-trading.com/en>) and is processed by its specialists in strict compliance with Terms & Conditions and Privacy Policy of this website.